

Services

Evaluation – The Director of QuestKids will interview you and observe/work with your child to examine learning strengths and weaknesses and make recommendations.

Parent Training – One or two hours a week of program set-up, parent (or other caregiver) training and consultation. The caregivers take what they learn and apply it at home.

Phone Consultation – The Director of QuestKids will provide consultation over the phone to assist in the development of acquisition programs for your child. This may include recommendations on what programs would facilitate your child's learning, how to teach a new skill or next steps for skills that are mastered.

In-Home, Center, or School Consultation – The Clinical Director or a Certified Associate Behavior Analyst (a State of Florida Certification) will come to your home or other setting and provide consultation, behavioral trouble shooting, or training for people in those environments.

Home Program Set-Up and Monitoring – The Clinical Director or a CABA will come to your home or other setting and design a home program for your child. The parents will provide the therapy themselves or hire an outside party to provide this therapy in their home. The therapist will train the staff and help the parents to monitor the program.

In-Center Behavior Analysis Therapy – A CABA will design a behavioral learning program with your child that will be implemented in our center by CABAs and other behavioral therapists for 4-20 hours a week. Your child will work toward goals that you actively participate in setting.

In-Center Behavior Analysis Therapy Intern Program – A CABA will design a behavioral learning program with your child that will be implemented in our center by college interns for 4-20 hours a week. Your child will work toward goals that you actively participate in setting.

In-Center Social Skills Therapy- Three kids with one certified behavior analyst. This program focuses on equipping and teaching your child the necessary play and social skills to thrive in the natural environment. The kids are grouped according to functioning level. Call for days and times.

Home, School, or Community Observation and/or Consultation for In-Center Families – Your child's primary therapist will come to your home or other setting to do a focused observation and make recommendations for your child. The primary therapist will attend IEP or other meetings with you as a program resource and advocate for your child and his/her goals.

Additionally, the following services are offered through QuestKids by Eb Blakely, Ph.D., C.B.A. These services are subject to availability. For additional information, contact Dr. Blakely through QuestKids.

Consultation – Quest’s Behavioral Psychologist will interview you and/or your child’s therapist and observe/work with your child to examine learning strengths and weaknesses and design a basic program for your child or evaluate and make recommendations on current programs.

Training in Fundamentals of Behavior Analysis – Three full days of group instruction in the basic principles and applications of behavior analysis. The material that will be covered includes; assessments, recording, positive reinforcement, extinction, prompting and fading, backward chaining, graphing, and more.